married in the presence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Rachel Miller, Mr. James A. Pollock and Mr. Frederick Lyon. In the fullest sense of the word the wedding was a very quiet one and the plans had been kept from even their most intimate friends, though several knew that the wedding would take place some time during the winter. Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Heintz left on the noon train for the east and will return in January to make this city their home.

The bride is one of the most charming and popular young women in Salt Lake society, and Mr. Heintz, who is general manager of the United States Smelting company, is prominent in business and social circles.

It would seem that Cupid is getting most of his warmth and inspiration this winter in front of the fires of the local smelters.

Don H. Porter of the Kenyon hotel, is hurrying to completion a bungalow in southern California for the use of his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth H. Porter, who, since suffering a paralytic stroke in September has been seriously ill. Mr. and Mrs. Porter are doing everything possible for her comfort and it is thought that the lower altitude and sunny skies of California will benefit her materially during the winter.

The successful debut of Serge Rachmanoff, the Russian pianist-composer-conductor, in New York, has substantiated the welcome accorded to his talents at his first American appearance in other eastern cities. Rachmanoff, as a pianist, combines a marvelous technique with delightful refinement and clearness of tone. His sense of contrast and phrasing, combined with a touch, firm, yet soft, imparts an impression of a sincere musicianly personality. To the rank of emotional pianists he assuredly does not belong. His art is too sure and sound for any such alliance.

"Algernon is very interesting," said the stockbroker's daughter. "What does he talk about?" inquired her father. "Why, he's ever so well posted in Shakespearean quotations." "Young woman," said the financier, sternly, "don't let him deceive you. Don't you let him make sport of your ignorance. There isn't any such stock on the market. I ought to know, for I've been on the exchange long enough."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

OF ONE GROWN OLD.

By L. Frank Tooker.

Now I would paint her portrait as of one
Grown honorable with deeds, the level brows
Carved in serenity, yet overrun
By furrowing years, to show the body bows,

While soul stands firm. Her eyes are laughter's
OWN,

Though long the channel of embittering tears,
Her thoughts frame halting speech, like old flutes blown

By lips that try the airs of other years.

Like lilies round the sacred alters set,
Hedged in by holy words and music, she,
Far from the world's unconquerable fret,
Lives out her days in sweet austerity.

No dread of wars shall now assail her soul,
No trumpets call her to the tall watch-spires;
Strife past, her thoughts now answer to the roll,
Like men-at-arms about the evening fires.

Her days speed by like armies through a land
Scourged past all struggling for. No drums
there beat;

But where the blood of battles stained the sand,
Now scarlet poppies nod about the feet.

Outlook.
